

Dancers competed

Irish dancers from the Hooley School of Irish Dance in Akron competed at the Mid-Atlantic Regional Dance Championships in Philadelphia Nov. 26 through Nov. 28. This elite competition drew thousands of dancers from Irish dance schools in the region.

The dance drama team placed third in its premier performance. The Hooley dancers told the story of two rival dance masters that show up in a provincial Irish town and the rivalry that forms among the townspeople.

Two individual competitors also placed in the competition. Carter Ishler, placed 11th in the Under-10 Traditional Sets Competition and Angelina Glick took 22nd place in the Solo Competition for Ladies Under-20.

Hooley School of Irish Dance, founded in 2001 by Crystal Glick, is located at 240 N. Seventh St.

Ephrata Review vol. 133 no. 10

12/15/10