

Dancers head to regionals

Twenty-nine Irish dancers from the Hooley School of Irish Dance, newly-located at Skyview Commons in Akron, were selected to compete at the Mid-Atlantic Regional Dance Championships in Philadelphia Nov. 26 through Nov. 28.

This elite competition, also called the Oireachtas (or-RACHT-us), draws thousands of dancers from Irish dance schools in the region. The Hooley School dancers will compete in a variety of events from the dance drama, where a story is told through dance, to traditional set dances, solo competitions and group dances.

Hooley School of Irish Dance, founded in 2001 by Crystal Glick, is located at 240 N. Seventh St. in Akron.

To Advertise in The Ephrata Review – Call 733-6397

Salon Int